Week ending March 8, 2024

The equity markets could not hold on to their recent rally and closed with a loss this week. Friday's better than expected job report pushed two of the major indices into record territory but then profit-taking brought stocks lower to end the week. The February non-farm payroll report beat expectations with an increase of 275,000 jobs, but December's and January's numbers were revised lower. The unemployment rate rose to 3.9%, the highest level in 2 years while the growth rate for average hourly earnings fell to 0.1%, down from 0.5% in January.

Fixed Income Markets Overview

- U.S. Treasury yields were under pressure during the week with the continued focus on rate cuts. The yield on the 10-year Treasury reached its lowest level in over a month.
- Fed Chairman Powell gave his semi-annual testimony before Congress this week. He stated that he believes the Fed will cut interest rates this year but stressed the need to see continued evidence of slowing inflation before taking any action. He did acknowledge that inflation has "eased notably over the past year". Expectations for a rate cut in June have increased slightly to 57.4% according to the CME FedWatch tool.

Equity Markets Overview

- As mentioned, the three major indices fell into negative territory by the end of the week, led by the Nasdaq which was down 1.2%. Utilities was the leading sector of the week with a gain of 3.3%, while Consumer Discretionary saw the largest decline with a loss of 2.5%.
- Stocks in the news this week included retailers Gap and Abercrombie & Fitch, which both reported fourth quarter results that beat analyst estimates. Several other retailers, including Target and Nordstrom, were able to beat expectations but lowered their outlook for 2024 sales growth.
- As earnings season winds down, look for a few remaining quarterly reports this week from Oracle, Kohls, Lennar, and Adobe among others.
